OLSON'S CLOUT SAVES DODGERS

Brooklyn Shortstop Stops Rout and Wins 4-3 Game.

By DAMON RUNYON.

(International News Service.) Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 10.—When the curtain of events dropped upon the third game of the 1916 world's series at Ebbets Field, Flatbush, it was Ivan Olson's terrific flop in the fifth that had the Dodgers still in front of the Boston Red Sox, by a score of 4 to 3.

It was Ivan Olson's smash that stopped the apparent rout of the Dodgers and put them back in the battle for the baseball championship after they had lost two games in Boston and seemed to be on the run. The Red Sox still hold a one-game margin, but few of the 20,000 chilled fans in the windward stands in Flatbush today doubt that the Dodgers have a good chance to take the series.

Ivan Olson's clout practically drove young Carl Mays, the right-hander with the weird underhand delivery, from the game. He finished out the fifth, but in the next inning Bill Carrigan, manager of the Red Sox, sent Olaf Henriksen up to bat for him.

It was young Carl Mays who stopped the rally of the Dodgers in the ninth inning of the first game of the series at Boston Saturday, and it was after that game that thousands of Brooklyn fans were shouting "Olaf! Olaf!" because of his error and changing him among the "goats" of the series.

Chased to Dressing Rooms.

One wondered if any of these abusive fans were among those who were saying all summer that Wilbert Robinson's club could not win the National League pennant without a shortstop, or if there were any of them among the wild-eyed that spilled out on the field at the close of the game today and chased Ivan Olson as he fled with the rest of the Dodgers to the dressing-rooms under the stands.

A Brooklyn band brought some order out of a lot of enthusiastic chaos by starting a march around the field. The Brooklyn fans promptly fell in behind the band, waving Dodger pennants, and shrieking vociferously.

The "roving rosters" of Boston and a band with the interminable "Tessie" had followed the Red Sox over to Brooklyn, and the rival cheering squadrons met in the middle of the field and mingled their yells and music.

Many Seats Empty.

It was more like an outburst after a football game than the celebration of a baseball triumph. The state of the weather helped in making it seem more like football than baseball. It was quite cold, although the sun was shining brightly. The spectators were encased in wraps.

It has been said in this story that there were 20,000 present. It is a mere guess. An official statement was given out at Ebbets Field today, either regarding the attendance or the finances of the game. It is the custom in fact, it is the baseball law—that these figures shall be issued immediately. Usually they are magnified to the press stand before the end of the game.

There were many empty seats in the upper tier of the stands at Ebbets Field today. Whether it is simply a case of the baseball public declining to pay the $5 asked for those seats, or whether it is something else, remains to be seen.

There was much criticism of Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn Club, at the time he first announced his policies. The National Commission decided him to resign, but he was elected to the position. For the first four games of the series, the commission is merely trustee for most of the money taken in, as the greater part goes to the ball players. Rows of boxes have been built out on the field, and some of these boxes along the right-center today. There were empty seats in the stands. The bleachers were all packed. It is said that there has been some sort of a clerical mix-up, but just what it is could not be learned.

Coombs Causes Fears.

Under the weather conditions prevailing, many Brooklyn fans were a little fearful of the result when they saw that the veteran Jack Coombs, the station where the Brooklyn pitchers go through that preliminary called "warming up." Pitchers who have reached Coombs are usually required to get the hot bats to get the year-stiffened muscles properly oiled up. "Colby Jack," hero of many a world's series encounter when he was part of Connie Mack's marvelous machine, was given a four-run lead by his teammates. Yet he did not start the game shining brightly, but pitched carefully and craftily, but the Sox were hitting his delivery with resounding whacks from the start, although good fielding behind him kept him out of trouble.

In the sixth, when Olaf Henriksen came up batting for Mays, Coombs passed him with four pitched balls. The score was 4 to 0 in favor of the Dodgers. One of the Red Sox was hurt.

The always dangerous Harry Hooper tried to right scoring. Henriksen, Janvin, the "school phenom," popped to Outshew. Chick Shorten, a mere recruit, playing center in place of Clarence Walker, singled over second, scoring Hooper. Coombs himself tossed out Hoblitzel, but there was a murmuring of apprehension in the stands.

Gardner Makes Long Drive.

In the seventh inning, with one out, Larry Gardner, the Sox third baseman, smashed a drive over the right field wall. Coombs turned even as Gardner was trotting around the bases and began waving his arm toward center field, where a bunch of Dodger and Red Sox

DECIDE ON PLAN

Compromise On Border Controversy Reached.

(By the International News Service.)

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 10.—The long awaited compromise plan of protecting the Mexican border was completed today after five weeks of deliberation. It was submitted to both the American and Mexican delegates for final analysis and approval. A copy has also been wired to First Chief Carranza and his reply is expected tomorrow.

Tomorrow Secretary of State Lansing will be called into the councils of the American delegates. He will be asked to study the proposed agreement in all points that may affect the diplomatic relations of each country.

Despite the reticence of both sides it was reported tonight that the provisions of the tentative protocols are as follows: Gradual withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico. As each detachment is brought back to the United States it will be stationed at the most vulnerable point on the American frontier.

On the return for this "concession" the Mexicans promise to rescind certain tax decrees which American owners of Mexican property say are confiscatory.

Establishment of the Mexican troops along railroad lines and near American mining and agricultural properties, so that Americans may return to Mexico immediately and resume operation.

GERARD KEEPS SILENT; LUNCHEONS WITH LANSING

Ambassador Given Splendid Reception Upon His Return.

(By W. A. DAVENPORT.)

New York, Oct. 10.—Upon James W. Gerard, American ambassador to Mexico, the highest honor a people can bestow—its thanks. It isn't to wonder that tears filled his eyes. The break in his voice was as genuine as the man himself. Back to his own shores he had come after three years of splendid endeavor to keep unsevered the peace that existed between Germany and this country.

He arrived on the Frederick VIII with his beautiful wife. A distinguished band of men, Republicans and Democrats, greeted him. There were no empty shouts to greet him. There were no flags flapped in his face. There was no strident band to make the welcome harsh.

He came home hedged about with an aura of mystery. Why was he here? What message did he bring? Was it a warning or an assurance? Did he come forecasting peace or war?

After reflecting at the Ritz, where he was assigned to a suite near that occupied by Count von Bernstorff, the ambassador, he motored to the residence of Col. E. M. House, and there had luncheon with the colonel and Secretary of State Lansing.

SCORES WILSON TRADE POLICY

Hughes Says Party Has Crippled Foreign Commerce.

(By the International News Service.)

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 10.—The Wilson administration's attitude towards American enterprise abroad formed the target for bitter criticism by Charles Evans Hughes in his speech here tonight. He charged the administration not only with openly discouraging new projects abroad, but also with seriously crippling American business in foreign lands by failing to insure its protection.

"Encouragement to the development of American interests abroad was dubbed dollar diplomacy, something shockingly reprehensible," he said.

"It smacked too much of prosperous enterprise. In consequence I may say that in respect to American interests we have had not only diplomacy without dollars, but diplomacy without sense."

"We now hear fine words as to our duties to the world. We are told that we are now to serve the world, that we have the best results in the world, that we have never thought of using that genius outside our own markets."

It is said that we have provided machinery for branch banks abroad.

"But what avails such words when we do not protect American lives and American property abroad. The adequate protection of American citizens and their interests abroad according to their right under international law is the corner stone of a policy to promote American enterprise throughout the world. This protection has been deliberately and deplorably refused by this administration."

GET OUT THE BLANKETS; FROSTY WEATHER HERE

Mercury Tumbles Near Freezing Point and City Shivers.

It was shiver, shiver, shiver all last night for many a Washingtonian who had failed to unpack the winter blankets and shake out the moth balls.

For the mercury dropped to the neighborhood of the 35-degree mark in the District, and in outlying rural districts the freezing point nearly was reached.

And along with the drop in temperature came the first real frost of the season. It was particularly heavy in neighboring parts of Virginia and Maryland.

So Washingtonians shivered, for it's hard to induce a person to unpack the blankets for Tuesday night when the Monday preceding has been the hottest day many a day in the city's history.

Such a day was Monday. So Washingtonians shivered.

But they will not shiver long, for tomorrow, says the weather forecaster, the mercury will rise and remain normal for some time.

Along with the cold snap came the announcement of a rise in the price of coal. And still further rises are probable, according to J. M. Burrill, of the Allegheny Coal Company.

PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANT REGISTERS IN LAUNDRY

(By the Washington Herald.)

New York, Oct. 10.—Charles E. Hughes registered for the November election here yesterday. He was the first voter to do so in the Third precinct of the twenty-four assembly district, his voting place ever since he was governor of New York. The registration place is normally a laundry. If Mr. Hughes votes next month, it will be the first time since 1896, when he was elected an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

In explanation of the nominee's failure to vote during the last six years, a statement was issued at Republican national headquarters that Mr. Hughes found it was the general custom of the justices of the Supreme Court "who hold life positions and are wholly out of politics to abstain from voting."

POLICEMEN IN BATTLE WITH 1,500 STRIKERS

(By the International News Service.)

New York, Oct. 10.—Four policemen and eight strikers were shot today in three serious riots at the Standard Oil works in Bayonne, N. J.

The last riot, occurring about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, neared the proportions of a battle. Twenty-five policemen, barricaded behind a railroad car in East Twenty-second street, fought off 1,500 strikers and their sympathizers.

More than 200 shots were exchanged between the workers' fell back in the face of a withering fire from the police. Eight strikers were left lying in the streets with bullet wounds.

NOTE TO KAISER PLAN OF WILSON

President and Lansing Discuss U-Boat Warning.

(By the International News Service.)

Asbury Park, N. J., Oct. 10.—President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, of the State Department, kept the lights burning at Shadow Lawn until a late hour tonight while they discussed the situation created by the active operations of German submarines in American waters.

The conference is expected to result in a note to Germany suggesting that a continuation of the submarine warfare so close to the shores of the United States might easily endanger the existing friendly relations between the two countries.

Such a communication would serve two purposes, it is said: 1. Germany would be asked by indirect means to recall the submarines from this side of the Atlantic.

2. The Kaiser's government would be warned that the loss of a single American life as a result of a violation of the agreement on cruiser warfare would mean a definite break in diplomatic relations.

The note would not have a built-in international law. Neither would it be an insinuation that Germany has so far violated any right by placing submarines off the New England coast and sinking British vessels. It would be intended as a precaution against "accidents" such as often lead to war.

It was pointed out by persons who talked with President Wilson today that a communication somewhat similar in character and purpose was sent to Great Britain more than a year ago when a patrol of allied warships was established just outside of New York harbor.

President Wilson is said to have reiterated today the opinion that the commanders of the German submarines now in the vicinity have strictly observed all existing agreements.

He is known, however, to view the situation with alarm.

WINS DIVORCE FROM THOMAS G. FORNEY

Wife of Former Local Attorney Resumes Name of Florence Schneider.

In granting an absolute divorce to Florence Schneider Forney from Thomas G. Forney yesterday, Judge Louis C. Barley, of the Corporation Court at Alexandria, authorized the plaintiff to resume her maiden name of Florence Schneider.

The divorce proceedings were filed early in August. Forney now is serving a sentence of from four to eight years in the Western Penitentiary at Pottsville, Pa.

Forney was a local attorney. He married Miss Schneider here in December, 1914. Forney was arrested in Pittsburgh in the summer of 1915, following an attack on his wife's father, to which offense he pleaded guilty. Miss Schneider has been living with Rev. Dr. John L. Allison in Alexandria. She will make her home in the future with her parents in this city.

In granting the decree, Judge Barley said: "All the allegations in the bill of complaint have been amply proved. The reason is plain. Love creates in human chemistry happiness. Happiness is the greatest of tonics. It is the true elixir of youth."

So Sarah Bernhardt, who arrived today from France, explained the vitality that flashed from her eyes and rang in her voice.

"Women would all feel and keep young if they loved life and loved humanity as I do. Every morning I awake I think I shall meet many persons who admire and love me. I shall admire and love them."

"There is much interesting work to be done. I love that too. I have done much work, hard work, in my life, the work of my women. Yet never for a moment has work seemed drudgery."

"That, then, is my message to women, to all women: love people; love life; love work; and you will never really grow old."

OCEAN COMBED

Destroyers Again On Search for U-Boat Victims.

(By the International News Service.)

Newport, R. I., Oct. 10.—Eleven speedy torpedo-boat destroyers are tonight combed the ocean off Nantuxet Shoals Lightship in a final search for the crew of the British freighter Kingstonian. But naval officials feel there is no hope of their being found.

In fact, they are now extremely doubtful if a boat of that name was a victim of Sunday's operation of the U-52. The whereabouts of the daring U-boat is now a mystery. It can be definitely stated, however, that she has made a good escape from these waters.

Rear Admirals Austin M. Knight and Albert Gleaves at noon today decided to once and for all settle speculation over the fate of the mysterious Kingstonian.

Last night Admiral Gleaves recalled all the destroyers then at sea, after a wireless was received saying the Kingstonian's crew had been rescued by a tramp steamer and were being taken to New York. This proved to be erroneous and probably referred to the survivors of the Strathmore.

Admiral Knight said this afternoon that if no survivors of the Kingstonian are found, even this will not establish definitely that the vessel was lost.

Later tonight the destroyers were still raking the ocean fruitlessly. Their wireless reports
